Medicare is strongly suggesting that Hospitals survey their patients on quality and it will be published on the Internet.

The Federal Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services is preparing to launch a national survey of patients' perceptions of Hospital care.

This 27 question survey will ask patients how well their care was from how well Doctors and Nurses communicate with them to whether their room and bathroom were clean.

Hospitals that deal with Medicare (almost all do) will participate.

Medicare is already experimenting with paying more for better care. The results of this study, known as "The Hospital Consumer Assessment of Health Plans Survey" could appear on the Hospital Compare website at www.hospitalcompare.hhs.gov starting in late 2005.

A clean room rates right behind Doctor Communication skills and responsiveness of Hospital Staff.

A clean room comes ahead of Nurses and Staff communication, Pain Management and several other issues.

A clean room/bathroom rates very high with Hospital patients and will be listed on the website for all to see.
